Lynch Law in Virginia.

STAUNTON, Va., April 11.—Thomas Hodges, the noted horse-thief, murderer, and desperado, who shot and fatally wounded Mr. Whitlock on Friday night last, was taken from the jail in this place about 1 o'clock this morning and hanged about one and a half miles from the town.

The jailer and ex-Sheriff McCutchen were both in the jail and refused the mob the keys, when they broke open the doors and took Hodges out. None of the men who entered the jail were disguised, yet they were not recognized by either the jailer or the ex-Sheriff, being strangers to both. Hodges had shot and killed four men previously in this locality. This first act of lynching in this locality is universally condemned.

FROM NEW YORK.

Ship News. New York, April 11.—Arrived, the steamer City of Paris, from Liverpool.

CONGRESS.

Continued from the Fourth Edition. He believed that the administration was debasing its power by using the veto as a means of appointment of Governor Cooke had been recognized by the whole country as an act of the highest character.

Mr. Randall suggested that Governor Cooke had had favors enough from the Government to induce him to crawl anywhere. (Laughter.) Mr. Niblack, resuming his remarks, said that everything done or tried to be done by Congress during the present session had been to the disadvantage of the country. The most important act of the session was the passage of the bill to amend the act in relation to the duties on foreign-made cigars.

THE CARDIFF GIANT.

A Sheriff Seizes Him for Debt. The St. Louis Democrat of the 7th instant has the following:

Everybody in the United States and San Domingo has heard of the Cardiff Giant. The humbug was exposed after the owners had realized large sums of money, and then the giant ceased to be a wonder in the East. Several months ago the Cardiff Giant was brought to this city and exhibited to admiring curiosity-seekers at a small admittance fee. The gigantic show, however, did not draw, and the giant was boxed up and stored away in the old State tobacco warehouse. The owner, Dr. Willford W. Wiley, was about to start out with his treasure on a tour, but he became involved pecuniarily.

An excursion was placed in the hands of the Sheriff, and on Wednesday Deputy Valentine was instructed to take the writ and seize upon the Cardiff Giant. He proceeded to Washington avenue, where he found a shop in operation with the "Great American Giant" as the heaviest attraction, and was about to levy upon that overgrown specimen, when the idea struck him that under the new constitution a live man could not be imprisoned for debt. The showman told him that he was probably in search of the Cardiff Giant, which was at the old tobacco warehouse. Thither the officer proceeded, and after a long search discovered a box eleven feet in length, with "Cardiff Giant" painted thereon. With great difficulty this box was removed to the Sheriff's warehouse, and there it will remain until the 15th instant, when it will be knocked down to the highest bidder, unless the amount of the execution and costs shall previously be paid.

Yesterday Dr. Wiley went to the warehouse to look after his stone giant. Not finding the wonderful image there, he became almost distracted. He rushed about the streets tearing his beard and gnashing his teeth in a manner terrible to behold. Meeting an ex-police commissioner, he seized him by the collar and cried in a wild agonizing tone, "The Cardiff Giant has been stolen! Some dastardly thief broke into the house and carried him off!" "Nonsense," said the ex-official, "no man in the world is strong enough to carry the giant off." "The sheriff has got him," cried the doctor. "Ah! oh!—the villain. I tell you the giant isn't mine. He belongs to my wife. She sold her furniture to buy him. I must have that giant or die!"

Rushing to the Sheriff's office, the Doctor demanded the release of his giant, as it was the property of his wife. "Belongs to your wife, does it?" said Deputy Bishop. "All right; here is a judgment against her also, and we'll hold the giant for both of you." "Would you seize a woman's household treasure? It's all she has—sold her furniture to buy it. Isn't it exempt from execution?" "No; giants are not exempt when made of stone." "Oh, my giant! my Cardiff! What will my wife do without her giant?" "Any one wishing to speculate in giants can doubtless obtain a bargain by attending the sale. Mrs. Toodles will be there."
